THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 17.

GRANT'S CANDIDACY .- In conversation with a Bulletin reporter Monday morning in reference to General Grant's position on the question of a third term Mr. George W. Childs, said that the tone of all his letters in regard to the matter were to the same effect-that he had made no intimation of his desire for the cflice or that he would accept it if offered to him. This is in accordance with a letter received at Washington from a travelling companion of General Grant, who writes that the General says he will not be a candidate for the Presidency under any circumstances, and that he does not want to re-enter public life and will decline a nomination to any public office when the time comes. Nat-urally this is attracting a good deal of attention, but it does not seem to surprise the real friends of the General, who have always been reluctant to see him dragged once more into the field of politics, and believe that a due regard for his happiness requires that he shall be permitted to live boyond and above the turmoil of par-tian politics. They believe also that he will be a much greater and more effective force for good in the country during the remainder of his life if he should be permitted to remain the fore-most private citizen in the country, a man with whom all administrations would advise in emer-gencies, and who in that position would receive for the first time the greatest reward for his many laborious and brilliant services to the country in the affection and confidence of his countrymen, regardless of party or section. The very general expression of good will towards him all over the country, and the certainty that if he were to express a desire for the nomination he could at the country of the country has it are probably more plasting to General the country of the country has it are probably more plasting to General the country of the country has in the country of the country of the country has in the country of the once have it, are probably more pleasing to General Grant and more satisfactory to him than would be an actual nomination. The General is well posted about what is going on in this country, in regard to a third term, and will no doubt give his views upon the subject upon his arrival home.-Philadelphia Bulletin.
